Top Tips

Before You Apply

- ✓ Read the job description and person specification carefully
- ✓ Applications are shortlisted against the criteria displayed on the advert
- ✓ Apply early — we may close roles before the deadline
- ✓ Ensure you include 3 years' employment history (with explanations for gaps)

Writing Your Application

- Use the person specification headings to structure your answers
- Use the STAR method:
  - Situation
  - Task
  - Action
  - Result
- Use specific examples
- Focus on your contribution, not just your team
- Keep your answers clear and concise

Things to Avoid

- Copying and pasting from job descriptions
- Vague statements without examples
- Listing duties without impact
- Submitting incomplete employment history

Using AI tools in your application

We understand that some candidates may use tools such as ChatGPT or other AI platforms to support their applications. AI generated job applications can often be generic, impersonal and not accurately reflect your qualifications, skills and knowledge. When generative AI is used, there is a risk that it can falsify information, which can be dangerous in a healthcare setting.

We encourage you to:

- Use AI as a guide or support tool only
- Ensure your application reflects your own experience and skills
- Check that all information is accurate and relevant to you and the role you are applying for

Please note:

- Applications that appear overly generic or not reflective of personal experience may not perform well in shortlisting
- We are looking to understand your unique skills and impact

Completing the Application Form

Education & Training

- Include relevant qualifications
- List professional registrations where applicable

Employment History

- Include at least 3 years
- Explain any gaps clearly
- Focus on achievements, not just duties

Supporting Information

- This is your opportunity to demonstrate how you meet the criteria
- Structure your answer using the criteria on the advert

- Provide examples using the STAR method

Top Tips

- ✓ The supporting information section is not a cover letter. Use it to give more details about your work experience, skills, and responsibilities. Explain how these match the job requirements listed in the advert.
- ✓ Keep your writing clear, focused, and to the point. Use simple examples to show your experience rather than telling a long story.
- ✓ If you are a student, include your placements and practical experience in the job history section. You can then give more information about what you learned and achieved in your supporting statement.
